"By his independent, creative and conscious activity, man continuously transforms nature and society, changing as he desires what does not meet his needs, and replacing what is outdated and reactionary with what is new and progressive."

— Kim Jong Il, On the Juche Idea

"Natural environments and social conditions have a great effect on human activity. Whether natural environments are good or bad and, in particular, whether the political and economic systems of society are progressive or reactionary — these factors may favourably affect human endeavour to remake nature and develop society or limit and restrict that activity. But man does not merely adapt himself to environments and conditions. By his independent, creative and conscious activity, man continuously transforms nature and society, changing as he desires what does not meet his needs, and replacing what is outdated and reactionary with what is new and progressive. This is man's endeavour and struggle to change and transform the world in to one that serves man better."

— Kim Jong Il, On The Juche Idea

THE INFECTION

A wretched bourgeoisie made sickness has infected the psychedelic counterculture. What was once a tool for shattering the false ego has, under the pressure of neoliberalism, become another arena for hyper competition. As many have explored these substances, psychonauts are now chasing the "apex of tripping", ego death and constructing hierarchies around who has achieved the most profound dissolution of self.

This is bourgeois logic manifesting at the counter-cultural level. The psychedelic ego is a self-image that becomes inflated through use, ironically causing the opposite of the intended effect, failing to break the mind and ego from the programming of bourgeoisie society and it's logic of social interaction. This is the logic of the tech bro microdosing to get ahead, the competitive tripper treating ego death like a high score on a leaderboard, your joe rogans repackaging the psychdelic and branding it for capitalist normalcy. Though this was always an issue, it has only grown more pervasive, so goes the story with late stage capital. It is consumption without transformation, an experience that begins and ends with the limits of bourgeoisie individualism.

WE REJECT THIS ENTIRELY.

THE SCIENTIFIC TOOL (PSYCHEDELICS)

Materially, what is happening?

LSD and psilocybin profoundly alter consciousness by acting on the brain's serotonin (5-HT_{2A}) receptors or replicating it. This leads to the quieting of the Default Mode Network (DMN). Think of the DMN as the brain's "ego center" — it's the voice of the petty-bourgeois self: anxious, comparative, obsessed with status and resource-hoarding.

By temporarily quieting the DMN, psychedelics allow different parts of the brain to talk to each other, breaking down rigid patterns of thought. It allows you to perceive directly that the walls between "you" and "the other" are socially constructed — a material lie upheld by a dying system.

THE JUCHE-MARXIST-EGOIST GUIDE TO PROPER USE

Under our interpretation of Juche, our guiding principle is individual self-reliance, inherently tapped into collective order. We do not rely on the institutions of the oppressor to heal us. We take tools into our own hands with the discipline of a revolution, and the artistic expression of the worker, unbound by capitalism and its dominant ideology.

1. SET A MATERIALIST INTENTION.

Do not trip just to "get weird." The goal is not simply experimentation with your mind. Before you begin, you must have a mission, a venture, game. Common intentions include:

Identify a "Spook" (fixed idea): Choose a particular bourgeois value (possessiveness, status anxiety, fear of the boss, organized religion) and focus on its origin in your subconscious.

Deprogram Fear: Face the internalized boss/owner that makes you obey authority without question.

Enhance Collective Bonding: Used in a group setting, psychedelics can dissolve the barriers of mistrust between group members, forging a real, embodied sense of unity.

2. THE COLLECTIVE "SET & SETTING"

Do not trip alone if you can help it. You are not a rugged individualist. You are a Marxist. The setting must be secure (a trusted hub). Start with a test dose to gauge the strength and your reaction. You are responsible for the safety of your comrades; there is no room for reckless "heroic dosing." off the bat.

3. INTEGRATION: TURNING INSIGHT INTO POWER.

The trip is not the end of the work; it is the reconnaissance mission inside your subconscious. Without integration, it is just entertainment. After the experience, you must hold a debriefing session. You will discuss what you saw, and identify the "spooks" or "internal cops, bosses" you encountered. Then, you plan the attack: how will you apply this new, unshackled consciousness to your daily life, your revolutionary work?

WE DO NOT USE PSYCHEDELICS TO ESCAPE THE WORLD. WE USE THEM TO SEE THE WORLD MORE CLEARLY, SO WE CAN CONFRONT IT, THEN CHANGE IT.
